OVERVIEW

Kyle Medin is a litigation attorney who focuses his practice primarily on toxic torts, specifically asbestos cases, and general litigation. Prior to joining Ellis & Winters in 2020, Kyle worked as a Legal Fellow at the Duke University Office of Counsel where he investigated EEOC charges, assisted the University with meeting its renewable energy goals, and tackled land use issues.

Kyle was raised in Waltham, MA, and moved to Oviedo, FL as a teenager. He attended Florida State University as an undergraduate, where he earned both a B.S. in Political Science, summa cum laude, and a B.S. in Environmental Studies, summa cum laude.

A passion for the environment and environmental issues originally led Kyle to law school. He received his J.D. from Duke University School of Law, and was awarded a Duke Law School Dean's Scholarship. While at Duke Law, he served as Editor-in-Chief of the Duke Environmental Law & Policy Forum (Vol. 29), and as Special Projects Editor of the Duke Law Journal (Vol. 68). He also spent a semester working with the Environmental Law & Policy Clinic.

In his free time, Kyle plays the drums, guitar, and piano. He is also learning the basics of visual design and all things CGI.
