OVERVIEW

Curtis Haynie has been working in the information technology field for over 12 years. He started working at Ellis & Winters in 2008 and has been in his current role as System Administrator for more than three years. He is responsible for maintaining, upgrading, and managing the firm's software, hardware and networks.

His general duties consist of monitoring and maintaining all systems including email, network storage and security. Curtis is also responsible for troubleshooting issues, examining system performance, and installing and configuring software. He manages the firm's technical assets and rolls out new hardware to the firm.

Curtis enjoys focusing time on automation, trying to make things as touch-free and intuitive as possible. He is always happy to interface with clients to help resolve any technology issues they may have. He has CCNA, CCNP and CMNA Cisco certifications. In his free time, Curtis enjoys playing soccer and adding the latest automation features to his home.
