Brian Heitzer counsels high-tech and traditional companies on corporate and commercial matters. His counsel focuses on both the legal and the business aspects of a given transaction in order to help clients address their short-term and long-term goals.

Brian has experience structuring and drafting a variety of business agreements, including investment agreements, technology transactions, development agreements, terms of service, joint ventures, manufacturing and supply agreements, marketing and distribution agreements, and mergers and acquisitions transactions. In addition, Brian helps startups and emerging growth companies navigate formation, internal governance, capital raises, and commercial arrangements.

Brian also represents clients on intellectual property matters, including copyright and trademark licenses, fair use, and copyright and trademark protection.

Brian loves to play and watch sports and enjoys spending time outside with his Belgian Malinois dog, Gemma.
